Yellow fever

Summer's hottest color adds instant flash to your wardrobe

"Look at the stars, Look how they shine for you, And everything you do, Yeah they were all yellow." — from the song "Yellow," by Coldplay

These shoes from TJ Maxx are sure to get attention.

It is the color of bananas. Lemons. Sunflowers. And now, every type of clothing and accessory.

Yellow is hot this summer. Does it feel weird to wear such a flashy color? Yes.

Does it make an outfit instantly summery? Yes.

Angelina Jolie, the queen of wearing black, put on a bright yellow dress for the Cannes Film Festival a few weeks ago. Beyonce recently rocked a pair of citron Christian Louboutin pumps. Even Lance Armstrong pulls it off gracefully with bracelets and cycling jerseys. So why can't you?

For just $5, you can get two plastic yellow bangle bracelets at H&M in Woodfield Shopping Center. Or, if you're really bold, get a pair of patent leather peep-toe heels ($19.99, at TJ Maxx).

And you'll be all yellow.

What else is new?

It's the frat boy look, for girls. A new line of women's underwear, called FOXERS Boxers, is designed to stick out from above your jeans, like you see on baggy-jeans-wearing guys. Ah, but here's the catch: The bottom half of the undies are normal, sexy women's underwear. This pair comes in boy-short lace bottoms or a "b-string." ($20, www.foxers-boxers.com)

Strange but interesting concept. But, hey, it's classier than exposed thongs. Company founder April Sweet says, "We finally have a reason to bend over."

• A blow dryer with a frizz-free guarantee?

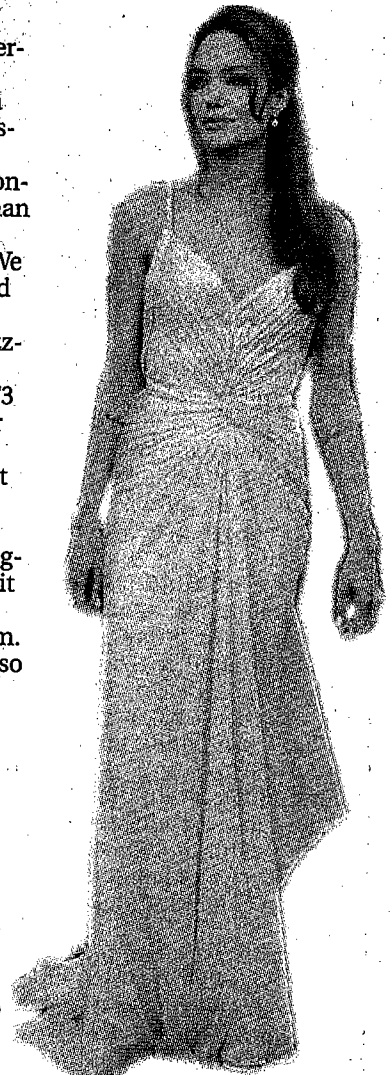

Tourmaline's new T3 Featherweight hair dryer offers just that. It weighs just 13 ounces, and claims to dry hair 70 percent faster than regular dryers. For $200, it should. Available at Sephora and Nordstrom.

The same company also makes the T3 Bespoke Labs Wet-or-Dry Iron, which straightens and steam-dries hair all in one step. It's even designed for women with coarse, thick or extremely curly hair. ($200, also at Sephora and Nordstrom)
